

THE DESTINY KIT

DESTINY'S CALL

*In the stillness you may hear a call — faint, elusive fragments born of mist.
Quivering in the half-light, your destiny is seeking you clothed in layers of disguise you alone will recognize.*

In the winter of 2005 I was inspired to create a kit of flower essences to support the manifestation of our destiny. During this work, I was also writing Gaia's Invitation. Writing the 120 poems in deep meditative communion with Gaia, the sacred earth broadened my understanding of human destiny. I realized we must consider our fulfillment within the context of the earth's evolution. At this time of global ecological crisis, we must see our role not as victims or saviors but rather as co-creators with Gaia.

We are not at the mercy of Gaia's changes. As co-creators, we chose to come here at this time to play our unique part in the evolution of this beautiful earth. Individually and collectively, our destiny is to discover our unique role in this time of global transformation. Gaia's destiny is to transform into new forms of beauty and balance. We all feel this pressure to change radically. Most of the time, we translate this inner pressure as stress and try to find ways to relieve the discomfort. Destiny's call is urgent. It is not a call to return to the status quo or familiar comforts. Within each of us, there is a unique soul code designed to unlock some aspect of Gaia's beauty and radiance. This code is being activated now. We feel it at a deep body-soul level and we must all respond in our own true way.

This is the purpose of the Destiny Kit — to assist people to recognize and stand consciously in their destiny at this critical time in our planetary history. The kit supports the manifestation of unique gifts, ones we barely know we have to offer, in harmony with Gaia. My hope is that these writings and the flower essences will help you honor your unique path, stand in your beauty, strength and joy, and pour out the blessings you alone came here to offer.

With excerpts from some of the poems in Gaia's Invitation, I include the perspective of the sacred earth in our human experience so we may open to Her call and sing the world into beauty with Her.

*At the gateway of your birth your destiny sets root in me.
I hold you as we sing together from your first breath to the last.*

DESTINY KIT ESSENCE DEFINITIONS

I. Weaving Sacred Threads of Connection

Singing, she gathers the grape vines bending each to find the strong and supple.

Humming with a honeyed warmth, she weaves them into firmly round and holy baskets.

*Singer, vine, and basket reveal the Song.
Shaped and lifted through her weaving its tone falls gently to the quiet earth to rise anew through next spring's greening vine.*

Use the essence to strengthen your connections within the web of destiny. At the personal level, it will help link your body and soul, your primary life-connection. It can offer a protective cocoon for various stages of development, cradling you so that you feel neither isolated nor separate. It will help you resonate with the people and places that are integral to your destiny. The essence also offers you means of receiving nourishment and transmitting joy as you build pathways out into the world. Weaving Sacred Threads of Connection brings increased radiance, immunity, and a sense of being an integral part of Life.

Fire, Raven Gold, Peony, Re-evaluation, Balanced Power, Ether, Peacemaker, Red Climber, Zinnia, Water, Tithonia, Horsechestnut, Giant Milkweed, Bougainvillae, Raven Pink, Woman-Being, and Gardenia

II. Following Desire

*The desert, scorched and endless holds him without mercy.
No green shade nor cool water breaks his horizon.
Still he walks, following the compass of his soul.
Then a tendril of perfume, sweet and complex, brushes him, capturing his heart.
Is it only imagination?
Again the scent rises,
lingering, fading.
Breathing deeply, he alters his direction.
The sweetness is a memory
drawing him to the ancient source.
Promising everything, all he longs for — he walks toward the treasure with no name.*

The essence will help you to honor desire as integral to your destiny path. Use the essence to help you pause and access the still point from which all desire originates. It will help you stand in your maturity and access the wisdom that you currently need within your heart, mind, and body. As you open and surrender to the fullness of your dreams, they will gradually appear.

Gloxinia, Raven Orange, Woman-Being, Helenium, Letting Go, Mock Orange, Millenium, Thanksgiving, The Messenger of Forgiveness, Cuban Hibiscus trees, Portia Tree, Castor Bean, Columbine, Sedum, Amethyst, Creativity, Othello, White Lily

III. Preparing to Receive the Holy Fire

She trembles, watching the magnificent sleeping lion

*from her hiding place in tall grasses.
Her tail twitches, sending a shiver through her taut body, so expectantly charged with the strangeness of it all.
He does not see her,
or if he does, he will not show it.
Cloaked in his sunlit splendor, his languid body sprawled on the naked rocks
he terrifies and enthralls her.
She hovers, full of yearning
yet ready instantly to slink away.
Though she knew him all her life now, only now, does her body see him. Her blood and fur are electric with the certain knowledge of their meeting.*

Use the essence to stabilize yourself during times of intense inner change. It will help you open to the full current of your life-energy and meet your destiny as it approaches you. Organizing the creative passion within your heart and lower chakras, it will assist you in letting go fear, shame, and resistance to the inflooding energy of your own fulfillment.

Arbutus, Annual Trio, Raven Orange, Raven Red, Raven Yellow, Cedar, Ether, Earth, Water, Fire, Air, Quartz, Datura, Crambe, Opening Bud, New Year 2003, Nicotiana, Passionflower, Valentine's, Portia Tree, Tithonia, Gardenia, Dunderry Essence, Calling forth the Vital Life Force.

IV. Positioning Radiance

*I am still and I am soaring.
I am breathless and I am wind.
I am dragonfly's silk-net wings and I am its dark-worm body.
I am maple, broad, alive, and reaching and I am totem, slender, carved, and proud.
I am woman-flesh, warming babies and I am fiery kiln, melting metal.*

*Every possibility hums in me past and future shimmer around.
This moment, only this moment is full of all grace.
Let this magnificent strangeness swell within me as I stretch my hand and lift a foot
to dance within this holy space.*

Positioning Radiance is the doorway essence. Use it to stabilize yourself before moving forward. It will affirm your stance upon solid ground, helping you include all the elements in and around you that are part of your destiny. Midway through the kit, it provides the awakening point before we meet our greatest fears. It signals the completion of the gathering and embodiment phases and the beginning of self-aware expression. It also marks the threshold between silence and sound. Through the element of fire, the essence stimulates a swift, precise opening and promise of ecstatic joy.

Fire, Raven Blue, Vibration — Nature's Music, Resurrection, Cardinal Flower, Chives, Gladiola, Maple, Peony, Stinging Nettle, Wayfaring Tree, Rhododendron.

V. Honoring the Shadow

The hidden places — backs of necks and tailbones feathered rootlets of a tree buried faces of large stones purple insides of vulva petals rebel thoughts that rarely break free into air.

The forgotten treasures — ferocious longings turned inside-out and stashed away cool forests felled for shopping malls starlight dimmed by sleepless cities the miracle of silence and the fevered dance that shapes our tired earth-bodies into singing bowls.

The cast-off pieces — dark-skinned bearers of ancient grief broken spirits of chained elephants poisoned fields struggling to yield the shattered wills of aging children littered streets with homeless carcasses mirroring our shame.

The shiny masks — taut smiles hiding fear and rage chilly stainless machines and glossy seduction fast cars, swift drugs, and soft ice-cream smooth talk and puffed-up promises the convoluted ways we run, ever afraid of dying.

*The world reaches its upturned hand to me — my heart lurches with recognition.
These strangenesses are part of me,
a challenge and an invitation.
I must take up the morsel in my doorway summon courage and hold it until it grows precious in my gaze.*

Use the essence for psychic protection when you are moving through the challenges of the outer world. It will help you embrace paradox, to sort out what is yours from what needs to be blessed and released. It can help you when your world appears to be falling apart but is actually breaking open. Let the essence strengthen the purity of your heart, the clarity of your intention, and the receptivity of your soul.

Raven's Retreat, Dunderry's Call, Centurea, Orchid, Magnolia, Coral, Stepping Out, Yellow Lily, Oriental Poppy, Rudbeckia, Aubrieta, Gloxinia, Crambe, Gardenia, Cardinal Flower, Hosta, Tuberose.

VI. Entering Stillness

*A stone drops into the sleeping pond startling the water's skin and sending it, trembling, toward the shore.
Making its silent journey into the darkness
the stone is focused on nothing but falling.
The water yields, embracing this new heaviness, offering a brief buoyancy for the stone as it tumbles to its resting place.
The last waves whisper against the shore
as the stone settles into its dark new home.*

Use the essence for a journey into stillness. It will help you surrender to the power and simplicity of your being. During meditation, use it to help you view your world through your heart. It will assist you to open a deeper connection with spirit for centering and healing, both within yourself and into the world around you.

Queen of the Prairie, Bouganvillae, Yellow Lily, Nicotiana, Ginger Lily, Calla Lily, Coral, Essence of Tara, Orchid, Integration, Lighting the World, and Crassuli.

VII. Embracing Destiny's Joy

*Twisting up the black stone dagger snake spirals to the sky.
Red is the fire of their dance snake caressing dagger and shame is shed — an old skin falls to the ground.*

Use the essence to draw up and dance your own truth and fire-energy. It will help you to stand in who you are, embodying the natural radiance of your joy. The essence will help you to shed the debilitating voices of self-judgment and shame that prevent you from standing fully in your destiny.

Cardinal Flower, black basalt stone dagger (natural formation) and snake skin. Created on Bartram Island in Georgian Bay.

MEDITATIONS ON DESTINY

I made the seven essences over a period of months and during this time, also received a series of meditations. Several destiny-themes emerged to give multi-dimensionality to the kit. I trust these ideas will expand your imagination and help you work with the kit in many different ways.

The central force in our destiny is joy, the pure, manifest impulse of spirit animating all form. The first meditation outlines the four aspects of joy we explore throughout our lives. The second meditation looks at the creative process from a new perspective through the four phases of destiny's manifestation. The third meditation considers the four creative vessels in which we experience our destiny.

These writings are an invitation to engage actively with Gaia's energies while we respond to destiny's call in our hearts, minds, and bodies. Our personal destiny is part of Gaia's will to create beauty. Co-creating with the sacred earth, we joyfully reveal ourselves while Gaia shines in her full beauty.

1. JOY'S ROLE IN SHAPING DESTINY

Joy is simple.

Savor it with every breath...

Remember the power of joy and follow it as flower steadfastly tracks the sun.

The key to manifesting our destiny lies in embracing the fullness and complexity of joy. Rooted in the present moment, joy manifests in many forms of creative beauty and harmony. Unlike joy, excitement is often based on anticipation or external stimulation. True joy rises within us from a well of peaceful stillness; even in the most challenging circumstance we can find some element of joy.

When we allow ourselves to be touched by this energy, a burst of radiance fills our bodies and we feel the goodness and wonder of Life. Savoring these precious moments is vital as joy fills us at the deepest cellular levels. Stored in our bodies, the frequencies of joy establish the blueprint of our destiny. Every aspect of our lives can be guided by joy for it springs from destiny's underground river and fuels our inner sun. Joy is the active force of love, inspiring our creativity, healing our bodies and minds, and blessing all our relationships.

Four Aspects of Joy

Joy lives at the heart of creation, its impulse destined to beauty.

For our joy to be fully radiant and balanced, we need to invest in all four aspects of joy.

The joy of embodiment – being here in form

Like a plant's roots, the foundational level of joy comes through active engagement with our bodies. Movement, exercise, cooking and eating, touch and sensuality, gardening, and most things physical provide the means for our bodies to receive essential nourishment from the earth. Embodied joy also includes sound as a primary organizing energy. Sacred sound has the ability to shift material form into patterns of wholeness and beauty.

The joy of relatedness and interaction

The second aspect relates to active engagement in the world through ideas, work, commerce, and friendships. The joy of relatedness involves interactions of all kinds at the human level and also with commodities. Like a growing plant's stem and branches, the joy of connection offers stimulating exchange within our world.

The joy of accomplishment

The third aspect relates to self-expression and the creative maturation of our gifts. As we work our gifts in the soil of our body-souls, develop our expression through the dynamics of interchange, and accomplish our goals, we experience the fulfillment of our destiny in creative form.

The formless source of joy.

The simple joy of being encompasses every aspect of our lives. In times of stillness, we can touch the peaceful heart at the center of all Life. Without a deep, quiet connection with the formless source of joy, our lives will tend to be much ado about nothing.

When I did this meditation, I was told that I was weak in the joy of embodiment. I also failed to access the formless source of joy sufficiently. When I thought about this, I realized it was true. Spending most of my time and energy on my work, I did experience the joy of accomplishment but I tended to be driven. I accessed intuitive information in meditation but I didn't take time to simply BE in the stillness. With these imbalances, my full experience of joy tended to be jerky and compromised. With this awareness, I am more deliberate about exercising, taking pleasure in my body, appreciating my garden, and tuning myself with sound. I have also found tremendous pleasure in opening daily to the current of joy in my meditations and be filled with life-energy in the stillness of the present moment.

II. THE PHASES OF DESTINY'S MANIFESTATION

My rules are alive.

They hold your movement in the web.

Feel them in the seasons' rhythms of slowed winter and energetic spring.

Like the seasons, these four forces are constantly at work in our lives. Being conscious of the dominant force in and around us allows us to move through life with graceful ease.

Gathering

Throughout our lives, we gather experiences as the raw materials for our destiny. Our soul acts as a magnet, attracting us to the people, places, and opportunities that have significance for us. When we are free to follow our heart without fear or shame, we can gather what we need to manifest our destiny and through creative work, we can begin to turn these raw materials into new gold.

Embodying

Embodiment is the process of owning what we have been attracted to and transforming it into something unique and creatively potent. As we give flesh to the ideas that resonate within us, we have to discriminate the dross from the gold by asking ourselves, 'What is my creative work and what is part of someone else's path?' The embodying process shapes the gestating elements within us, intensifying our radiance, transforming us at a physical level. Digesting and assimilating what we have gathered, we gradually become what we love and thereby fulfill the physical part of our destiny.

Abiding

When we have pursued our desires with focused passion and brought our ideas into form, we hold a radiant power that influences our environment. This pure, raw life-energy takes many forms, manifesting as vibrant health and a deepening kinship with life. This phase of our destiny involves resting in the abundant life-energy rather than using it for creative work. As we abide in stillness, our destiny begins to vibrate between our fully alive body-soul and the larger environment. While it may appear outwardly that very little is occurring, this can be a time of profound inner change. Think of a chrysalis: it looks like a dry leaf on the outside but within, the caterpillar is dissolving as the butterfly forms. Humming with life, our bodies are tuning to everything in and around us. If we can stay fully present during this phase, a process beyond our conscious comprehension can lead us into another, richer phase of our destiny.

Sounding

Sounding is the active expression of our destiny in its fullest dimension. While worldly success offers some satisfaction, this form of accomplishment is a pale fraction of what we came here to do. Our full potential involves conscious participation in the living fabric of this beautiful planet, singing our world into beauty. The ways we do this are infinitely varied, each part contributing to a magnificent global symphony. Proceeding from the heart of stillness, our heart-felt sounding initiates a vibrating resonance within Gaia. She always responds to this quality of our expression with a rush of healing energy. We feel Her pulsing recognition of our destiny-song as a gentle surge of joy. Gaia delights in the realization of our destiny. Our radiant song is an integral part of Her fabric, the sacred web of Life.

Since I received this information, I have seen several examples of how important the abiding phase is in the creative process. We tend to be more familiar with the gathering and embodying phases of a creative process. As these aspects develop, we often feel a sense of fullness and power. The abiding phase invites us to hold this fullness and open to a greater mystery. Abiding is rarely comfortable for it takes us into the unknown, yet this is the phase where we must develop the spiritual presence to surrender and restrain from pushing our creative accomplishments prematurely out into the world. As we open to the process of abiding, we never know what energies will greet us.

A friend told me about her strong impulse to build a cabin on her rural property. Thinking she would use the cabin as a music studio, she carefully dowsed where the building should go, saved money for the materials, and built it mostly by herself. Once it was constructed, she stepped inside and realized the cabin was not meant to be a music studio. "I don't know what it's for," she said, both confused and somewhat dismayed. I told her about the phases of destiny manifestation and suggested she might be in the limbo-like phase of abiding. "During this phase, you have a chance to let a larger destiny appear." She understood and immediately relaxed. Then she told me she had composed songs inspired by stars and stones. I saw her musical explorations were taking her into a deepening communion with Gaia. I have no idea what insights will come during this time of abiding, but now she is inspired to let her music be an integral part of Gaia's song.

III. DESTINY'S VESSELS

While we are on earth, we experience our destiny within different arenas. Imagine a set of ornate wooden Russian dolls stacked within each other, from the largest to the smallest. Using this analogy, the smallest vessel is our body housing our soul; the largest is Gaia's body, containing all life on this planet. Between these two poles, we have the vessels of our creative expression and the arena of relationships within human society. As we live and move within these various vessels, we generate life-energy, nourishing ourselves and stimulating the environment around us. This is the heartwork of destiny, pumping within each vessel and pressing on the other containers in a process of creation.

Destiny Lived in the Body

The pathways between us are fewer than before.

Do not despair; we still can meet.

Our clearest path lies in your body.

Walk this way with courage, and it will lead you Home.

Destiny manifests through our body, our most intimate vessel. One of the primary reasons we came here is to explore the dynamic interplay between body and soul. In the womb of the body, we gestate all the creative ideas and energies of our dawning sense of destiny. Our bodies are affected by the creative thoughts and energies we engage in, and our experience in the world is affected by the body-vessel we inhabit.

Destiny Articulated in Creative Life

If you could see your full heart-song your knees would buckle in awe.

Its radiance is a starburst you came here to sound.

Our second vessel is the creative arena where our ideas and inspiration take shape through a project, work of art, or creative endeavor. As we reveal ourselves through our creative actions, we begin to offer our unique legacy to the world.

Destiny Expressed in Social Relationships

*Steer your way past humanity's debris.
Do not let the wailing snag you.*

In a hundred lifetimes, you could never fix it all.

Human society is the third vessel where a great deal of our conscious attention involves relationships: communicating, giving and receiving love, and creatively interacting with our fellow human beings. This level also includes our connection with animals.

Destiny Fulfilled within Gaia's Body

Through you I tune this beautiful world.

Your heart-song is a vast rainbow coloring earth with its melodies.

I hunger for your heart-song.

Feed me with the varied colors of your love.

The fourth vessel is within Gaia, the living earth. Within this vessel, we potentially engage the fullness of ourselves in co-creative interactions with the numinous aspect of the natural world. Currently, our connection with Gaia is our most tenuous link: many people live in a virtual world of technology, completely out of touch with the earth while others are forced deny their sacred connections to nature just to survive. Our interactions with Gaia are at a transformational tipping-point.

I explore my life within Gaia's body primarily in my garden. Beyond the obvious pleasures of designing the landscape and tending the plants, I love to sleep in a tent in the back of my garden on warm summer nights. Nestled in the cedars and close to the ground, I am held in Gaia's embrace and nourished in ways I can barely articulate. Coming indoors after an afternoon nap in the tent, with parts of my soul awakened, I feel the limitations of my house.

Another way I feel part of Gaia's body is by listening to the garden for its songs. Each morning, I slowly walk the circular pathway, observing the changes in the plants, feeling the weather, and listening to the birdsong. As I walk, I open myself to hear the garden's song rising in my heart. Humming the phrases that feel authentically related to the land, I walk until the song settles in my memory, then I go to my piano and write it down. Listening and receiving this way has deepened my communion with Gaia. I know this is part of my destiny work — to listen and receive the songs from the land.

WORKING WITH THE ESSENCES

I. Taking the essences in sequence

Initially, it is effective to use the essences in the order they were created. This approach will help you feel the patterns of your evolving destiny. Test for how long to use each essence. If you are not sure about how to check intuitively, you can take each essence twice a day for a week. Take a quiet time, preferably in the same space each day, to work with each essence. Take 2-3 drops and read the definition. Sit quietly, focus on your breath, and let your energy drop into your heart. It is helpful to keep a journal of your insights and experiences. There is no prescribed time for this cycle; you may stay with one essence for three days, a week, or a month. Simply move on to the next essence when you feel complete.

All the essences will deepen your sense of joy. You can focus on the areas where you recognize some weakness or lack of development. Each essence will expand your understanding of the power of joy in your body, your relationships with others and interactions in the world, your accomplishments, and your connection with Source.

Used with a focus on each of the four destiny's vessels, the essences will expand your sense of being more radiantly present in your body, your creative life, your social relationships, and within the intimacy of Gaia's body.

Creating a Specific Intention

Before you embark on a cycle of working with the essences, it is helpful to create a specific intention to identify where you are and what you are seeking to manifest during this phase. Your intention can be at a personal body-soul level, in some creative capacity, in human relationships, or within the global environment. It is important to remember that Gaia's energy is present throughout all these levels. Your conscious focus and engagement with Her takes the co-creative work to another level. You do not need to work with a huge land-mass; our backyard gardens are a marvelous way to experience Gaia's energies and to participate in the cycles of creation.

Applications for the essences

Each essence can be adapted for use in the various stages of destiny-manifestation. Here is an example of how one essence can be used throughout the four phases. During the Gathering stage, Weaving Sacred Threads of Connection will help you attract the people and resources you need for your conscious destiny work. During the Embodying stage, the same essence will give you a greater sense of connection with your body, particularly if you include movement, breathwork, and/or sounding while taking the essence. In the Abiding phase, it will take you deeper into the heart of stillness and connection with Life. In the Sounding phase, Weaving Sacred Threads of Connection builds the network for the active transmission of your gifts into the world.

II. USING THE ESSENCES WITH CREATIVITY

To delve more deeply into the healing potential of the kit you can take the essences in sequence and do creative, introspective work. This can be done privately or in small groups. The following notes offer ideas about how to explore each essence. Let your own creative inspiration guide you.

1. Weaving Sacred Threads of Connection – Seeing the Web

Weaving Sacred Threads of Connection helps us connect with the oneness of all, to see our place and feel a sense of belonging.

Using this essence, take time to become aware of what you are connected to: past events, future dreams, special places, emotions, people natural elements, arts, etc. Do not judge your connections, simply be aware and gather these as elements of your life. These are the raw ingredients and indicators of your destiny. Everything is sacred. You could augment your journaling with a collage, photographs, words, and the like for a more visual awareness of your web of connection.

2. Following Desire – Desire as Fuel

Following Desire frees us from unconscious enslavement to the world by assisting us to honor and listen to the pull of our souls' desire.

As you work with this essence, journal about your desires, including things you may have started that did not succeed if this held a genuine germ of desire; for instance, perhaps you wanted to play a trumpet but were assigned a flute in the highschool band. Perhaps you loved a childhood activity but do not see how it applies to you now. This phase helps you retrieve conscious awareness of your desires. Gather them carefully and lovingly; do not dismiss or judge them. Your desires are the fuel for your destiny.

3. Preparing to Receive the Holy Fire – Building Energy

Preparing to Receive the Holy Fire helps us stay present to the increased energies of our own awakening destiny so that we do not feel overwhelmed by our own greatness or run off prematurely as the process intensifies within us.

This phase involves movement. Begin with stillness and music and gradually let your body move spontaneously. Movement can also be done in silence. Follow your body's will, observing with curiosity and wonder how it wants to express itself. You are building energy in your body. Take the essence again at the end of the movement. Sit and feel what has shifted in your body, pausing before moving into your everyday activities. This phase is helping you build the body-vessel to hold and nourish your own creative, spiritual fire.

4. Positioning Radiance – Stillness and Preparation

Positioning Radiance stabilizes us in the present moment, helping us be awake and aware of what is happening as our radiance develops and affects our world.

After you are comfortable with movement, your experience of stillness will deepen naturally. This phase is not a time of action, though it can always be helpful to include some form of spontaneous movement and/or sounding.

During this cycle, allow images to enter your meditative times. In each session, welcome the image (sometimes this may be a phrase, a color, or a body sensation) and make note of what comes to you. You are increasing your internal radiance by inviting the elements that expand awareness of your destiny. The receptivity of this stage prepares you for moving deeper into your destiny.

5. Honoring the Shadow – Including our Personal Demons

Honoring the Shadow holds us steady as the elements needing to transform in us and in our immediate world come into view. It gives us the wisdom and compassion to view disease, failure, loss, and destruction as part of the larger story of humanity. Vital for our growth, this difficult step initiates a deeper commitment to our destiny.

As you work with this essence, journal about the difficulties and challenges you experience in your life. These elements are yours to transform. Do not analyze or judge yourself about these, neither dismiss their severity or pettiness. In other words, be compassionate with yourself. You may want to do another collage to make the shadow elements visible. While you may feel some emotional intensity in looking at the shadows, do not get overly tangled in your feelings. The opportunity is to see these elements as essential parts of your destiny. Shadow elements are life's raw materials needing transformation in you and the world.

6. Entering Stillness – Being Present

Entering Stillness invites a state of highly focused receptivity that often runs counter to our tendency to rush to completion when the goal is in sight. Pausing at this stage allows a conscious opening to the unknown. In stillness, we can deepen our connection with Gaia and release the tendency to create solely from our egos.

During this cycle make space in your day for holy stillness. This is a time of non-action and radical openness, a simple presence of Being. You are making space for some of the particular aspects of your destiny to enter by building a bridge through silence and stillness. You do not have to DO anything in the stillness of the void. For some people, being simply present can be the most challenging step of all.

7. Embracing Destiny's Joy – Singing your Song

Embracing Destiny's Joy links us to the pulse of creation. As we contain and move with life's energy through the various stages, the essence supports a surrendered experience of joy's ecstasy rippling in and through us.

Use the essence to help you access the deep currents of joy within your body. Take time to draw this energy up through movement, meditation, being in Nature, singing or any way that feels natural and life-affirming. As this energy fills you, sit in stillness and enjoy the sensations in your body. Then gradually allow yourself to feel where this life-energy naturally wants to move. How does it want to be expressed? Follow this with focused yet gentle attentiveness. Do not force yourself to do anything. When your actions feel complete, pause and notice how you are feeling. Take the essence again. This cycle is the active expression of your destiny. The world yearns to hear your song.

III. COORDINATING WITH GAIA'S DESTINY

Using the essences to coordinate consciously with Gaia's Destiny is recommended after you have gone through the personal cycle and are familiar with the essences from a body-soul level. As this work can be very intense, I recommend you do it only once a week to allow yourself time to integrate the information and energies.

This application involves meditation and chant. Use the essences in any order. Being conscious of the elements in the cycle, take the essence initially to stabilize yourself. Then, consciously open a connection with Gaia through the corridor of sound. Stating your intention to connect with Gaia in a safe, protected way, chant on a single tone that resonates with your heart-chakra. Chant softly, listening to the sound and keeping your focus until you feel a vibrating resonance with the sacred energies of the earth. When you are fully connected with Gaia, invite an image, phrase, or body-sensation to inform you about your current connection with the earth. Record this for future exploration at the conclusion of the meditation.

As you move gently out of the meditative state, be sure to disengage from Gaia by acknowledging and thanking Her, then reconnect with your own body by doing something physical. Because connecting with Gaia at this depth can be overwhelming for your body, make sure you do not miss this step of reaffirming your separate earth-body. Over the next days, observe your world for signs that affirm and amplify your dynamic, interactive connection with Gaia.

I reach for you, full of longing

*For you to find your way.
My prayer is constant,
That you not turn away
From your pure and simple calling.
So many kingdoms, near and far,
Await your precious song.*